Circet USA Acquires SourceOne, Expanding Telecom Engineering Capabilities

Faribault, Minnesota, July 2025 – Circet USA, a leader in network infrastructure services, today announced the acquisition of SourceOne, a Utility Consultant, specializing in Outside Plant engineering and design, serving the telecommunications, utility, and governmental sectors. This strategic move enhances Circet USA's ability to deliver end-to-end infrastructure solutions across the United States.

SourceOne will continue to operate under its established name as SourceOne, a Circet USA company. Its leadership, operations, and commitment to customer service will remain unchanged, ensuring continuity for clients and employees.

"Circet USA and SourceOne are building a stronger, more agile organization with the scale, expertise, and innovation needed to lead the industry," said Trevor Putrah, CEO of Circet USA. "Our goal is to set new standards in service excellence, strengthen our national footprint, and create sustainable growth opportunities for our employees, customers, and partners."

The acquisition brings together SourceOne's engineering strengths with Circet USA's national reach and infrastructure capabilities. The combined organization is positioned to meet growing demand for broadband expansion and utility modernization with integrated, cost-effective solutions.

"We're excited to join forces with Circet USA and begin the integration process," said BeeJee McGinty, CEO of SourceOne. "By combining our strengths, we're confident this partnership will create new opportunities for our team and deliver even greater value to our customers - without changing the core ethics and integrity that has always defined SourceOne."

SourceOne will begin working with Circet USA's integration team immediately, focusing on aligning best practices while preserving the values that have defined its success.
